Chicago's own Bare have taken their two-man improv show to festivals across the United States and to Canada and New Zealand. Fuzzy Gerdes and Shaun Himmerick have survived city-wide power outages, bad shrimp scampi, and suspicious customs agents. But when the duo was accepted to perform at Chicago Sketch Fest they faced their greatest challenge yet – writing down their comedy ahead of time. And as the pair developed the script for their show they discovered the dozens of characters they usually play themselves were demanding their own stage time.

For Chicago Sketch Fest, Bare presents the world premiere of "Bare Plugged In" – a very special two-man show that will feature fifteen performers, including dancers, a special guest appearance by Super Punk, and a live cat.
